Family caregiving affects

The nation's family caregivers provide the lion's share of long-term care for our older adult population. They are also central to older adults' access to and receipt of health care

When the end of life
makes its inevitable
appearance, people
should be able to expect

File Type PDF Involving

reliable, humane, and effective caregiving. Yet too many dying people suffer unnecessarily.

While an "overtreated" dying is feared, untreated pain or emotional abandonment are equally frightening.

Approaching Death reflects a wide-ranging effort to understand what we know about care at the end of life,

Involving

what we have yet to learn, and what we know but do not

adequately apply. It

seeks to build

understanding of what constitutes good care for the dying and offers

recommendations to

decisionmakers that

address specific barriers to achieving good care.

This volume offers a profile of when, where,

Involving

and how Americans die.

It examines the dimensions of caring at the end of life:

Determining diagnosis and prognosis and communicating these to patient and family.

Establishing clinical and personal goals.

Matching physical, psychological, spiritual, and practical care strategies to the patient's

Involving

values and circumstances.

Approaching Death
considers the dying
experience in hospitals,
nursing homes, and other settings and the role of interdisciplinary teams and managed care. It offers perspectives on quality measurement and
improvement, the role
of practice guidelines,

Involving

cost concerns, and legal issues such as assisted suicide. The book proposes how health professionals can become better prepared to care well for those who are dying and to understand that these are not patients for whom "nothing can be done."

Individuals with

disabilities, chronic

conditions, and

functional impairments

need a range of services and supports to keep

living independently.

However, there often is not a strong link

between medical care

provided in the home

and the necessary social services and supports for independent living.

Home health agencies

Involving

Families are rising to the challenges of meeting the needs and demands of these populations to stay at home by exploring alternative models of care and payment approaches, the best use of their workforces, and technologies that can enhance independent living. All of these challenges and opportunities lead to the consideration of how home health care fits into the future health care system overall. On September 30 and October 1, 2014, the Institute of Medicine and the National Research Council convened a public workshop on the future of home health care.

File Type PDF Involving

The workshop brought

Involving

together a spectrum of public and private stakeholders and thought leaders to improve understanding of the current role of Medicare home health care in supporting aging in place and in helping high-risk, chronically ill, and disabled Americans receive health care in their communities.

Through presentations

and discussion, Families In Care participants explored

the evolving role of

Medicare home health care in caring for

Americans in the future,

including how to

integrate Medicare

home health care into

new models for the delivery of care and the future health care

marketplace. The workshop also

policy reforms and

system's current

inefficiency underscore the urgent need for a

systemwide

transformation. About

30 percent of health

unnecessary services,

excessive administrative costs, fraud, and other problems. Moreover,

needless suffering. By one estimate, roughly

75,000 deaths might have been averted in

delivered care at the quality level of the best

report states that the way health care providers currently

train, practice, and learn keep pace with the flood of research discoveries and technological advances. About 75 million Americans have more than one chronic condition, requiring coordination among multiple specialists and therapies, which can increase the potential for miscommunication, misdiagnosis, potentially conflicting interventions,

As well as suggesting a programme of activities for older people in care homes

including arts and crafts, role-playing, gardening and cooking, it also takes the stance that 'activity nursing' should be integral to all personal care plans and not simply regarded as an add on to medical care.
