In Magic: The Gathering's Commander format, players select any legendary creature from across the game's history to be used as their deck's commander.
However, a common complaint from many newcomers to the format is that players are not able to use Planeswalkers as the commanders of various decks.

Any permanent (artifact, creature, enchantment, planeswalker, and land) with the legendary supertype is bound by the "legend rule," which prevents multiple copies of the card from existing on the battlefield under the same player's control. Legendary may also appear as a supertype on non-permanent cards (instants and sorceries).
